ALBUMEN INDICATES
SOMETHING IS WRONG

Presence of Foreign Substance in the Urine May
Not Be Dangerous But the Cause
Must Be Eradicated.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York.

former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A GREAT many letters come to me from various parts of the continent. Many of them ask for health advice and others inquire about the treatment of this and that disease.

When you are really ill you need the personal attention of your family physician. I would not undertake to direct the treatment at long range. But advice about how to avoid disease I gladly give, as well as elementary information about the causes of disease.

Recently I had a letter from a disturbed mother, anxious to know what can be done for her son who has "albuminuria." This lady does not realize she has asked a question. I cannot answer without more information than she gave me. I shall attempt to explain why.

The word "albuminuria" is a general term applied to albumen in the urine. There should be no albumen in the urine and when it is present there is something really wrong with the health.

What is albumen? A good example is the white of an egg. Another form of albumen is present in the blood. If you strain out of the blood the red and white corpuscles, there is left a clear serum. In in a sense, is not unlike egg white. At least it contains albumen.

In some abnormal kidney conditions blood may escape from the capillaries and find its way to the urine. In every such case albumen will be found if the urine is tested. There are a lot of such disturbances of the kidneys.

You would expect albuminuria in inflammation of the kidneys—the condition the doctors call "nephritis." Every inflammation has as a symptom congestion—a surplus of blood.

It is not to be wondered at that in nephritis the fluid part of the blood oozes out and reaches the urine.

It is not necessary to have an actual inflammation. Anything which produces kidney congestion will do the same thing. Diseases of the lungs, liver or heart sometimes produce congestion of the kidneys and it may be so pronounced as to result in albuminuria. Any fever is causable of doing the same thing.

There are conditions in which the blood is thinned leaving it more likely to leak into the urine. Of course this is a pretty crude way to explain the condition but at least it will make it understandable.

Among the disturbances which produce albuminuria are anemia and poisoning by drugs. Albuminuria is a symptom observed in epilepsy, congestion of the brain and other diseases of the brain or nervous system. In women it is not uncommon during pregnancy.

Young persons may have albumiuria even in the absence of any ex-

DR. COPELAND

cutting disease. After severe exertion or after a cold bath it may be present.

In short, it is impossible to form an opinion in any case of albuminuria without knowing all the circumstances or it may not be. To know what to do to overcome it you must first find out why the symptom appears.

IN WHICH HE DIED

COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—Geo.

Thaler, 44, who committed suicide here yesterday, concealed his manner of self destruction so completely that police are at a loss to determine how he died.

A note scribbled on a scrap of paper found on the center of the dining room table of his home late last night, which read "you will find me in the garage, Geo." Other than that there were no clues.

Mrs. Thaler who found the note called neighbors who went to the garage and investigated. Thaler's body was found there with no evi-

A search of the premises re-

Mrs. Thaler could offer no reason for her husband's suicide.

The car was from Michigan, and the persons were on their way to Gallipolis.

—Breakfast tables are likely to hold fewer canteloupes this summer than last, although the acreage in the big canteloupe areas, is likely to be better. The acreage in Florida, Georgia and the Imperial Valley of California, has been sharply reduced from that of last year, according to revised estimates of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. The California territory, which is by far the largest of these producing areas, has only 33,460 acres this year as compared to 39,760 acres last year. The present indication is for a yield of 160 crates an acre last year. This increased yield, however, will not bring the total production to that of last year.

For California, Florida, Georgia and Texas combined, the forecast production of early canteloupes is five and one-half million crates as against slightly more than six million crates a year ago. The average condition of the crop on May 1, was about 5 per cent above that of last year and slightly higher than average, but the acreage in these combined districts was 15 per cent below that of 1927.

24 DIE AS OHIO CELEBRATES ITS FOURTH HOLIDAY

While Toll Over Nation Is Over 200, Figures Compiled Today Show.

BY THE UNITED PRESS

Ohio's Independence Day celebration yesterday cost at least 24 lives, a survey by the United Press today revealed.

Traffic and grade-crossing accidents claimed 12 lives, six drownings were recorded and six other persons met death in one way or another.

The toll was recorded as follows:

Automobile fatalities: Akron, 3; Vermilion, 2; Toledo, 2; Shelby, 2; and Zanesville, East Palestine and Springfield, one each.

Drownings: One each at Youngstown, West Union, Lebanon, Wilson Lake, Mich. (Ohio) and Bayard.

Deaths included a fall from a bridge near Columbus, two who died from heat in Akron, one who died from poison liquor in Toledo, one killed by a train and another stabbed to death during an impromptu celebration.

More than 200 persons were killed in Fourth of July accidents in the United States, a United Press survey revealed today.

With some sections of the old south and southwest still to be seen from the number of killed at 10:30 a. m., took at 201.

Hot weather which blanketed almost the entire country on Independence Day sent countless thousands to the sea shores and inland watering places and was responsible indirectly for an unusually large number of drownings. The United Press, at that hour, has accounted for 93 lives lost while bathing or boating.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Four deaths and scores of injuries marked a Fourth of July heat wave hereabouts that drove thousands to beaches and highways to escape 97 degree heat in the city. Miss Margaret W. Anderson and Miss Catherine Carr were believed drowned in the Potomac, when their canoe capsized.

Wilmer Mais, 11, jumped from a motor boat to retrieve cap pistol ammunition he had dropped, and was drowned in front of 17 relatives.

TWO ARE HURT ON 4TH HERE; DAY IS QUIET

Fiftieth Anniversary of Largest Fire In City Is Noted On Yesterday.

The Fourth was a mild-mannered day in this city. Outside of the heat which was tempered by cool breezes from the southland, the day passed off without incident.

Many people hid themselves to the sylvan recesses of some dark pool where "Skeeters" could not find them, and fished and fished and fished, and after a few hours enjoying the sport of landing the finny tribe sat down to a lunch on the green away from the humdrum of life and the cares of a home.

Only two little minor accidents occurred from using explosives. Frank Martin's hand was struck by a big firecracker which went off before Mr. Martin could separate himself from it.

The premature discharge knocked his hat off and came close to injuring his right hand.

One other injury to a little girl, was reported. Her mother had lighted a small firecracker, and in throwing it, struck the forehead of her child, causing a small bruise just above her eye. Her eye escaped injury.

The Centennial celebration at Canal Winchester yesterday, drew the big crowd. Roads to the little village were lined with autoists, Chillicothe's fireworks celebration drew a goodly bunch in the evening and Ashland, Ky., drew those of sporting proclivities during the day.

The crowd at Scippo was rather meager. The swimming holes at points along Darby were well patronized by the kids, who always know where to have the most fun. In the evening the colored population gave a dance at the Memorial hall. The 166th regiment band accompanied by a number of colored people came down in a special car over the Traction line from Columbus and enjoyed a dance until the small hours of the morning.

The band paraded the business section of the city. Yesterday was the fiftieth anniversary of the largest fire that ever struck this city. The burning of the market house and adjoining building occurred on Saturday, July 4, 1878. The city was without firemen. They had been given leave to attend a fireman's picnic near Washington C. H. A VICIOUS SYSTEM (An Editorial.)

Today, in our contention that Circleville is being charged exorbitant water rates, we would like to present an illustration:

The Ohio Water Service Company recently advertised through G. L. Ohrstrom & Company, and others, 3,000,000 of First Mortgage 5 per cent Gold Bonds, at 99½, and $1,173,000 Cumulative Preferred Stock, 5½ per cent at 97½. The bonds would net $2,985,000 and the stock $1,143,675—a total of $4,128,675. Assuming this total is invested in "used and useful equipment," a 7 per cent. return would be $298,007.25. The bond interest and preferred stock dividends together equal $214,615, leaving $74,492.25 to be divided up among the common stockholders.

The above situation is vicious in that there is a temptation for the public utilities to increase their investment beyond public needs because it is extremely profitable. This causes the water consumer to pay an excessive rate charge to take care of non-essential financing and the 7 per cent. return on the investment.

It is profitable for the common stockholders, who have the voting power to increase investment unnecessarily. Common stock might conceivably be made to earn 15 to 20 per cent., and still be free from the risks of industrial stock, since the return of 7 per cent, on investment is assured by the Public Utilities Commission with its power to regulate rates.

The state is allowing too large a return on investment. A public utility is a legal monopoly and is largely protected from the competition common to industrial concerns. The services of public utilities are considered as necessities and not luxuries. Few public utilities have to worry about their markets. Consequently, there is little difference between the risk entailed on a public utility stock and that on a high grade bond.

The state has recognized a 7 per cent. return on investment as reasonable during the period from 1920-1927. During this time bond yields in public utilities have decreased from 7.35 per cent. to 4.60 per cent.

The result of the above is that the consumers of public utilities at the present time pay an excessive charge by being forced to pay for financing on a 7 per cent. rate, when it could be financed on a 6 per cent. basis today easier than on a 7 per cent. basis in the years 1920-1927.

The result of continuing the policy of a 7 per cent. return will be an enormous increase in the value of common stock of public utilities at the expense of the consuming public, for the returns are greater than the risks of ownership and management entitle the holder to receive.

The solution is for the public utilities commission and the courts to allow returns on public utilities property "used and useful," on the basis of current returns from high grade bonds and not stick to a 7 per cent. basis for all time. Such a policy will encourage a sufficient flow of capital into public utility developments without encouraging excessive expenditures for capital assets in order to take advantage of the 7 per cent. returns.

Just one of the reasons why Circleville is paying one of the highest, if not the highest, water rate in Ohio.

TWO MEN SUFFER INJURIES WHEN BIG PLANE FALLS

Army Transport Makes Forced Landing, Crashing Into Potomac River.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Two men were known to have been injured when an army transport plane, making a forced landing, crashed into shallow water in the Potomac river several miles below Washington this forenoon.

Private Thomas Standeven, one of the crew of seven aboard the Douglas machine, was hurt on the face and a second man suffered leg injuries which were at first diagnosed as a fracture. The men were taken to the naval air station at Anacostia, near here and then removed to Walter Reed army hospital. The second man's name was not immediately ascertained.

Several boats are standing by. Latest reports said the plane appeared not to be greatly damaged.

MILLIONAIRE DROPS OUT OF HIS AIRPLANE

Captain Albert Lowenstein, Famous Figurehead, Lost In Channel.

LONDON, July 5.—Captain Albert Lowenstein, Belgian millionaire who at one time offered to help finance his government free of interest, was lost today when he fell from his big Fokker airplane as it sailed across the English Channel.

The air ministry was inclined to believe that Lowenstein had mistaken the outer cabin door for one of the inner doors and had walked into the sea.

The accident was not noticed until the pilot landed the big craft at St. Ingbert. There Lowenstein's various aides went to help their master and found the cabin door open and Lowenstein gone. He apparently had disappeared as the craft passed over the channel.

The craft in which Lowenstein was flying was one of his own fleet of airplanes. There was a pilot, a mechanic, a valet, and two women secretaries in the ship as it circled over the Croydon air-drome Wednesday night and then headed towards Brussels.

All the mechanics at the field waved a bon voyage to the popular Belgian millionaire.

Lowenstein was one of the world's financial geniuses. Very little was heard of him until after the world war and then it was discovered he had amassed a fortune equal to the great fortunes of the world. He was retiring, cared little for publicity and devoted most of his time to aviation. He often commuted between the Bay of Biscay and the Thames, traveling all of the time by airplane.

Recently he visited the United States and made an air tour of the country. He emphasized he was greatly impressed by the vastness of the United States.

NINE ESCAPE AS CAR SKIDS NEAR CITY WEDNESDAY

Colored Participants In Accident Escape With Slight Scratches.

In an accident on the Scioto trail, five miles north of this city, Wednesday afternoon, William Mikey and family of Chillicothe, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Banks and Mrs. Lita Starr, of Detroit, Mich., riding in a Chevrolet sedan, upset.

The driver of the car saw the fresh gravel in the road ahead of him near the home of Dave Six, but was traveling too fast evidently, to slow down and avoid it. His car turned over.

Besides his guest, Mickey was accompanied by his five children, the youngest about two years of age.

The roof of the car was completely torn off, and the glass on one side of the car demolished.

Passing autoists stopped and assisted the unfortunate motorists to this city. The car was righted and came in on its own wheels.

None of the party suffered serious injury except a few scratches on their faces, caused by flying shattered glass.

They took the traction car from this city to their home in Chillicothe. They were on their way to Columbus when the accident upset their plans for the day. All are colored.

Rainfall In June Is Over 8 Inches; Corn Crop Injured

The rainfall for the month of June in this city and vicinity according to the local weather observer, Dr. H. R. Clarke, was unprecedented, 8 inches and 21 hundredths of an inch falling.

The weather conditions was not the best for this section of the state where more corn is raised than in any other portion. Farmers say it is three weeks behind in the average season. Little plowing was done due to muddy fields, and the weeds are still much of a threat.

Some of the corn has turned yellow, but it is thought that with bright skies this color will return to green. Some of the young standing corn has been fired and it is doubtful if this will ever mature.

J. A. Nichols of Portsmouth, bound to Columbus and chasing thru the city at a speed it is claimed by Motorcycle Officer McCrady was 42 miles an hour, was apprehended early Wednesday morning, and was brought into Police court where he left $5 for his appearance. He forfeited the bond.

BUENOS AIRES, July 5.—The Farrarin-Del Prete airplane has set a new world's record. Flying from Rome to Buenos Aires, the plane was sighted this afternoon over Natal, Brazil, continuing along the mainland to its goal, 7,000 miles from the starting point.

This is the longest air and sea trip ever accomplished, being twice as far as Lindbergh flew.

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA, July 5.—With all long distance flight records broken, Major Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete, of the Italian Royal Air Force, were believed today to be speeding at 135 miles an hour down the Brazilian coast toward Buenos Aires, on a 7,000 mile airplane flight from Rome.

The two flyers, the stars of the crack Italian air force, left Montecelo airdrome at Rome at 1:51 p. m., EST, Tuesday, determined to break their own world record for endurance as well as to establish a record that would be hard to break for a point-to-point flight.

Their route to Buenos Aires was almost twice as long as that of Lindbergh from New York to Paris, and is by far the most ambitious ever projected in a non-stop flight.

From time to time the aviators have signalled that all was going well, but have not given their position.

The last message concerning them—an unconfirmed one—from Rio De Janeiro to the Italian Radio Corporation at Rome—said they had been seen flying southward along the Brazilian coast.

Olinda and Natal wireless stations reported hearing the planes call, as well as various steamers.

The French Latécoere airplane radio station at Natal reported hearing Ferrarin call between 7:30 and 8 a. m. EST, promising to reply to any call directed at him at 9 a. m.

There was some concern among watchers at Pernambuco because nothing had been seen of the plane. It should have been over the coast at around 3 a. m., today. Beyond the unconfirmed message to Rome there was no visual report of it. All down the coast to Buenos Aires, where the plane is due tomorrow morning, watchers at airports and elsewhere were waiting to signal the silver grey monoplane. News of its markings "Savoia Marchetti" painted on the fuselage and the Italian tricolor on the rudder—had been broadcast along the 2,500 mile land route.

A Brazilian official announcement placed the plane at 7:50 a. m. EST, at 4 degrees north latitude, 34 degrees west longitude—roughly, 700 miles north from Fernando da Noronha, off the Brazilian coast.

VANSKOY FINED $200 FOR BEER

Hailing Judge Peter J. Blosser, candidate on the Republican ticket for court of appeals as "brother," William Vanscoy, repairman at the Bremher garage here, admitted he was guilty of the possession of 16 bottles of beer when arraigned in the Chillicothe court.

Judge Blosser did not consider the "brother" part, however, and assessed the man $200 and costs. He was remanded to jail in Sheriff Immel's custody until the fine and costs are paid.

The beer was taken from Vanscoy's ice chest at Yellowwood by a dry agent and a force from the sheriff's office in Ross-co.

A boy carelessly threw a fire-cracker on the roof of the old market house. It had been dry and hot for several weeks, and the spark set it ablaze, and the market house, the flames spread to adjoining buildings and at one time it appeared that the whole town was going to be destroyed.

Sparks from the building flew all over the town, and set fire to a number of houses. The citizens volunteered, and finally the fire was brought under control after fighting some seven hours.

A CALENDAR OF OHIO BIRDS

JULY

By Prof. Allen C. Conger, of the Department of Zoology, Ohio Wesleyan University.

Spring is gone and now Summer is here in earnest, as the sun slowly wheels back to the south. The ducks which nested in the marshes by our Ohio lakes have already begun to assume their dull "eclipse plumage" and on every hand we may find evidence of the passing of the mating season among birds in general. The more sociable species are now abroad in family groups. Mourning doves, chickadees, titmice, bluebirds and some others seem loath to break family ties so soon, but many species have already scattered, only to collect a little later on for their long south-journey.

It is somewhat surprising to find that a species, many of whose members were seen in our weedy fields last winter is just now settling down to family duties. Until now the Goldfinches have led a care-free existence—feasting on the dandelion seeds in our lawn (to which they are thrice welcome) or pouring out their canary-like song from tree-tops or bounding along over seeming billows of air—now these little rays of sunshine have sobered down to more prosaic tasks. Can it be that they must wait until the thistles and the milkweed of our neglected fields and fence-rows have provided the down with which to line the cups from which young Goldfinches first view this midsummer world?

A bit of discarded snake-skin dingling from the cavity in an old apple-tree in a neglected orchard—we may be sure that none of our much-maligned crawling friends left his clothes in such a place. This can be only the work of that big eccentric fellow, the Crested Flycatcher. Many and long have been the arguments as to why a bird should choose so consistently and frequently this peculiar and far from common material for nest adornment. Some there are who maintain that would-be despoilers of the nest are kept at a safe distance by a thing so threatening as the tattered scare-crow of snake-skin. This would seem to us to attribute to the nest-builder just a little too much of reasoning power, but we must at least credit to the Crested Flycatcher a place among those devotees of fashion who have lately turned in their quest of novelties to bags and purses and even shoes made of the skins of lizard and of snake.

The skill with which birds conceal nests is apparent to all of us who have searched in meadow or foliage for a nest when the actions of the worried owners made us sure it was quite nearby. To admit failure in this game of "hot and cold" with our feathered friends is quite humiliating. Certainly no less baffling is the skillful camouflage with which Nature has painted the eggs of those birds which nest in bare open places.

Last spring my neighbor was late in preparing his garden for seed and all because ashes which had been scattered to assist in breaking the heavy soil seemed to furnish a proper background for eggs, so Madame Killdeer selected a spot which suited and there laid her four top-shaped eggs. Those four mottled eggs which so matched their setting of ashes and earth were the most important things in the world to that mother Killdeer—and my kind-hearted neighbor forbore disturbing the nest until the young had gone. Fortunately from the prosaic standpoint of corn and beans young Killdeers are like new-hatched chicks, downy and able to run about and feed.

The Zoologist applies the term precocial to all such well-developed youngsters.

The month just past has been a rainy one here in Ohio, but before July ends and during the remainder of the summer we may confidently expect the hot dry weather of the average summer season. If you have never before done so, try the experiment of providing a bird bath on your home grounds. It need not be elaborate. A large flower-pot, saucer or a metal pan will do quite nicely. Keep it supplied with clean cool water and you will find it a means of enticing many feathered visitors to your lawn or flower garden. In fact, it is scarcely less effective than a feeding station during the winter season.

Protect your investment in your MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company is devoting a large part of its factories to making parts, in order that owners may enjoy uninterrupted service for many years to come.

More than eight million Model T Fords are still in active service, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer at small cost.

New fenders, for instance, cost from $3.50 to $5 each, with a labor charge of $1 to $2.50. Tuning up the motor and replacing commutator case, brush and vibrator points costs only $1, with a small charge for material. Brake shoes can be installed and emergency brakes equalized for a labor charge of only $1.25. A labor charge of $4 to $5 will cover the overhauling of the front axle, rebushing springs and spring perches, and straightening, aligning and adjusting wheels.

The labor charge for overhauling the average rear axle runs from $5.75 to $7. Grinding valves and cleaning carbon can be done for $3 to $4.

A set of four new pistons costs only $7 and an installation charge of $6. For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. Parts are extra.

All of these prices are approximate, of course, because the cost of materials needed will depend on the condition of each car. They show, however, the low cost of putting the Model T Ford in shape for thousands of miles of additional service.

See the nearest Ford dealer, therefore, and have him estimate on the cost of reconditioning your Model T Ford. He will tell you, in advance, exactly how much the complete job will cost.

TOD TO DEFEND TITLE

EDDIE MARTIN WILL ATTEMPT TO WHIP HIM

Fifteen-round Battle at Ebbets Field Finds Champ 7 To 5 Favorite.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
U. P. Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 5.—Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., the dean of ring champions, will defend his junior lightweight boxing title against Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of New York, former bantamweight champion, in a 15-round bout at Ebbets field, Brooklyn tonight.

Scheduled for last night, the bout was postponed until tonight at the request of Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy, who deemed it inadvisable to hold the contest on the night of a holiday.

Since Morgan won the 130 pound crown from Mike Ballerino in 1925 every other boxing championship has changed hands. Oddly enough, Morgan frequently has been beaten in non-championship bouts, but thus far he has always managed to win when his title was at stake.

The frail Seattle boy engaged in only six matches last year, lost four of them and yet managed to hang onto his title. Morgan is a clever boxer and prone to coast with no reward to fight for.

Even in his last two championship matches against Joe Glick, the Brooklyn Pants Presser, and Martin several weeks ago, Morgan barely saved his title. Glick was ahead on points when he fouled Morgan in the 14th round. Morgan won a contested decision over Martin.

Staging a remarkable comeback after losing his 113 pound title, Martin did not lose a bout after his return to the ring until Morgan won a decision from him.

Ordinarily Morgan might not consent to a return match with Martin, but the junior lightweight titleholder wants to convince the New York first colony that he has not gone back. He contends that he was so weakened by an attack of boils prior to the Martin bout that he was not his real self.

Learn that Martin any time, Morgan says, "I'll admit the last bout was close, but I want my self. I am in shape this time and I'll win hands down."

Martin has his eye on a bout with the lightweight champion Sammy Mandell, and is anxious to annex the junior lightweight title in his champion towards the 130 pound championship.

Morgan is a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

One month ago today, the Washington Senators were in the cellar of the American League, apparently without the ambition or baseball ability to beat even the Boston Red Sox.

Bucky Harris' club was riddled by injuries, most important of all that which kept "Goose" Goslin off the playing field.

Harris tried Sisler, Barnes, Wes, Spalding and several others in Goslin's place in left field, without success. The "Goose" himself couldn't throw a ball overhead, and drives into his territory had to be relayed back to the diamond by the center-fielder.

The Senators, from whom so much had been expected, slumped to eighth place May 22, and remained there until June 7, when the competition between Chicago and Detroit became so hot that there was no room down there for Washington.

"Goose" Came Back

About that time, "Goose" Goslin recovered sufficiently to take his place in the regular line-up. The Washington Senators started up the long trail to the first division. "Goose" took over the batting leadership of the American League, wielding his big war club at better than a .400 clip. The whole club perked up and began to play baseball, sweeping a most important series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees, they say of the Bambino and his world's champions.

Before the season is over, they may be saying the same thing about Goslin and the Senators.

The "Goose" is a ball player's ball player, for all he comes in for a deal of kidding from the others. All the "All-American" teams of recent years have included the name of Goslin. He is a hard worker and a fighter, always ready to give the extra ounce of effort or the left hook which any situation seems to require.

While injuries have handicapped the Senators during this and last season, Goslin played in 148 games during 1927, batting .324.

Although he gives the impression of being a hardened veteran, the "Goose" is only 27, and this is only his ninth season in organized baseball. He broke in with Columbia of the South Atlantic League, going to Washington in 1921.

World Series Star

Evidence that the Senators' star is a fighting ball player, is found in his batting average for two world series. It frequently happens that the best batters do not excel during a championship series. They are too much in the lime-light. Babe Ruth and others have been known to hit less than their weight in a post season engagement, although the Babe's weight still makes quite a respectable batting average for most players.

Goslin, however, while he is a marked man in a world series and the butt of most of the jokes, keeps up his hitting and consequently is doubly useful to his club.

Against the New York Giants, who were riding him hard, "Goose" hit .344 in the 1924 series when the Senators won the championship of the world. The following year, he hit .308 against the Pirates, nothing to write home to Salem, N. J., about, but still better than most of the other Senators did in that series.

The Senators are not going anywhere this season, since the New York Yankees already have appropriated the American League flag and are just playing out the schedule to get a little practice for another world series with the St. Louis Cardinals. But Washington belongs in the first division, no lower than third place.

METER TEAMS ARE SELECTED FOR OLYMPICS

Interest In Trials Today Centers On Decathlon Teams For U. S.

BY HILLIER KREIGHBAUM
United Press Staff Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—

With the Olympic 400 metre hurdles and 400 metre dash teams chosen—after spectacular showings—interest at the Municipal Stadium today centered on the choosing of the decathlon team that will represent the United States at Amsterdam.

Competition in the decathlon was ended yesterday by rain and at that time James Stewart, the Los Angeles A. C. athlete who did so remarkably well in the trials on the west coast, was leading with 5,590 points in seven events.

Kenneth Dougherty, of the Cadillac A. C., was second with 5,468 and Wes Ehlerman, Jr., South Dakota State Teachers college, was third with 5,048. Barney Berlinger was just boosting his score through excellent work in the pole vault when the rain interfered necessitating a cessation of the trials yesterday.

Yesterday's performances were sensational, chief of which was that of F. Morgan Taylor of the Illinois A. C., who set a new world's record in the 400 meters hurdles of .53 seconds and the work of Frank Cuhel, who dipped a fifth of a second off that record a few minutes later.

Cuhel previously had held the record at 53.5 seconds.

The two teams chosen after yesterday's performances: Four hundred meters—F. Morgan Taylor, Illinois A. C.; Frank Cuhel, University of Iowa; John A. Gibson, Bloomfield, N. J.

There was a possibility Robert Maxwell, Los Angeles A. C., might go as a fourth man.

Four hundred meters dash—Ray Barbut, New York A. C.; Emerson Spencer, Iowan Stanford university; Joseph P. Tierney, New York A. C.; Herman Phillips, Illinois A. C.; George Baird, University of Iowa; A. Leis, Detroit Y. M. C. A.; Fred Alderman, Illinois A. C.

MICHELIN 1 year Guarantee

against road hazards

We are now selling the world's best tire, Michelin, with a 1-year guarantee against blow-outs, cuts, stone-bruises, under-inflation and other road hazards

THE super-quality of Michelin Tires enables us to sell them with a 1-year guarantee against blowouts, cuts, stone bruises, under-inflation and other road hazards. We know that Michelins will give you more mileage than any other make unless they are injured by accident. But even accidents cannot rob you of full mileage, if you buy your Michelins here. You simply cannot lose.

During the past two years, reports have been received from over 3000 motorists who were testing Michelins against other makes. These motorists were picked entirely at random; therefore, you may be confident that your experience will be like theirs. More than 80% of them reported that Michelins gave more mileage than the other tires they were using. Of the remainder, only a few said Michelins gave less mileage; and these few exceptions, we are sure, were due to accidents. That's where our 1-year guarantee against road hazards comes in.

Michelin has the best tire; we have the best selling policy. The combination gives you the greatest certainty of tire satisfaction. Remember that when you need tires.

ADVERTISING THE GREAT CIVILIZER

In 1883, The Mervine-Kahn Co. store was founded at Rayne, Acadia Parish, Louisiana. It now does more than $500,000 business a year in a community of 3,000 people. It started with one clerk; now it has 30. Its sales has a volume that many a city jobber would envy.

Writing of the facts, the company manager says: "We have done a general merchandising business, with dry goods as the bulk of the business, catering to the trade of 10 parishes and ADVERTISING IN EVERY PAPER IN OUR SECTION."

Advertising invites and fixes a standard of comparison, by which one's goods, methods, prices may be tested. Advertising creates demand; one who does not know of the advertised automobile, still drives the ox-team, or rides pilon-fashion, or walks thru jungle paths; one who doesn't know advertised matches or electricity or gas, kindles a cave fire with a whirling stick, and gnaws half-cooked meat off the bones of the prey he has slain with stone or club. Advertising is information and goodwill investment.

REFORMING THE WORLD

Essays and orations delivered by school and college graduates, are often made fun of, on the idea that these cocksure young people tell how the world should be reformed, but that making human nature over is not so simple.

And yet in many cases the ideas offered by these young people are perfectly correct. They have been studying the world's best wisdom, the conceptions of wisest men and women. These superior thinkers can see how the world could get over its troubles, if people would avoid foolish acts. The student graduates get these good ideas, and pass them along, and the world laughs at them. All the same, they are usually true. The world could get over its troubles quickly enough, if it would follow in the path that the people of wisdom suggest.

MUNICIPAL TAXES

President Coolidge in his annual address to the budget organization of the government, brought out the fact that while in five years the federal government had reduced its expenses $2,000,000,000 the states, counties and municipalities had increased their costs $3,500,000,000. Many of these advances were necessary because of demands for modern facilities, but the present tax burden is too heavy and should be lightened.

The business men and citizens of every community in Ohio should study their local and state finances, and try to devise measures by which taxes can be reduced without injury to necessary services. When people take an interest in this problem they usually get results.

HIGHWAY WARNING SIGNS

Twenty states are now erecting the standardized highway warning signs recommended by the United States Bureau of Public Roads. These signs are so made that even if the motorist can't read the lettering, the shape of the sign will indicate the degree of caution required.

The roadsides of Ohio have many warning signs, and in many places they are too much mixed in with private advertising. If a driver is warned every 25 feet to buy someone's hot dogs or patronize a certain lunch room, he may fail to notice the warning sign which he should read for the benefit of his health.

The driving public needs much advice. Such signs should be erected with some discretion. If put in places where there is no special danger, the motorist is inclined to think that all such warnings are needless.

HOT JULY

Oh, it is
Hot July
And I
Would like to Sit
Around and dream,
At toll I do
Not care to try,
And I'd escape
The sun's bright
Beam;
And I'll admit I
Listless grow,
Objecting to
Grim Duty's call,
With everyone
I guess it's so,
The short, the long,
The lean and
Tall—
The warm air creeps
Into my skin,
And says, "I guess
I'll stick awhile;"
And I forget
The daily din
And all my good
Intentions file
For later dates when
I will feel
Like setting out
To do the job,
Right now my soul's
Inclined to steal
Away from work,
And conscience rob—
And so mid-summer
Fills me wild
With thoughts of other
Lands and sport
And like an aimless,
Happy child
Upon this earth
I would cavort—
And what we mean to say
Is,
It does us good, this
Summer time
To quit our old job
For awhile,
And toss aside the
Mirk and crime
To loiter around and
Simply smile;
Go chase a butterfly
Around,
And close the office
Doors up tight,
And lie and dream
Upon the ground
And if you want,
Stay up all Night.

Summer is here. We know it. The other day we saw a girl who has been wearing low-necked gowns, all winter walking down the street with furs around her neck.

We often wonder, if there is one what Mrs. Menchen's opinion of Mr. Mencken must be at time.

NOT AN IDEAL WIFE

A merry maid, named May,
Of husbands has had six;
But they of happiness
With her have had all nix.

A merry maid, named Alice,

Of course, dear reader, they must

He buys canned goods galore.

Picnics were evidently promoted by the press agents for a wealthy ant family.

Another pathetic little feature of everyday life, observes our old friend, Bob Ryder, is the way a woman whom no amount of cosmetics could do anything for spends her entire allowance, practically on them.

When a woman, Bob, admits she can't keep herself beautiful any longer, she's ready for lilies and the undertaker.

The saddest scene in the world is a couple 60 years old about midnight struggling on a dance floor just about the time the younger generation is hitting the gin bottle and going strong.

SYNOPSIS

Chuck White, member of a gang of crooks of which the Professor is leader, has fallen in love with Rose Shannon, lovely cabaret dancer. The Professor, believing Rose knows the whereabouts of $500,000 mysteriously stolen from the Mercier National Bank, corners her in a lonely cottage where she has been staying with Chuck and his supposed "aunt." Suspecting Chuck of double-crossing them, the remainder of the gang overpower him and force him on a train. While Rose, terrified by the Professor's threats, is struggling with him Chuck is desperately trying to evolve some way to escape his captors and rescue Rose.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

The Sparrow neither looked at Chuck nor did he move his foot away immediately. After a while his hand went into his pocket. The movement caused Lefty to look up quickly, but the smaller man was merely drawing out a package of cigarettes. He extracted one and crushed the paper packet in his hand, throwing it out into the aisle. He found a match and lit the cigarette. Then he looked up at Chuck.

"Wanna butt, kid?" he drawled, his lazy eyes still half closed.

But somewhere in their depths Chuck found the answer to Sparrow's question. "Sure," he nodded.

"At's th' las' one I got," he announced, as though the fact had not been perceptible. But with the kindness of an old and tried friend, he broke the cigarette in two, and stood up, leaning forward so that he could place the unlighted end half in the boy's mouth. "Hey," what's the big idea?" Lefty muttered, looking suspiciously at Chuck.

"Nuthin'. Can't I give th' kid a light?" He put the hand nearest Lefty into his pocket, searching for a match. He brought one out, struck it on the red plush seat, and leaned closer towards Chuck. A sudden lurch of the train threw him forward. He caught himself, flinging out his hand to the back of the boy's seat. At the same moment, the hand nearest the window made a swift movement along Chuck's side and in another moment Sparrow had righted himself, lit the boy's cigarette and sunk back into his seat.

Chuck puffed away at his cigarette, still gazing out of the window. The Sparrow nodded, leaning back, his eyes closed. Lefty settled down, staring straight ahead of him. Slowly Chuck's arm moved along his side; his hand slipped into his pocket. He felt the cold nose of a gun nuzzling the palm of his hand. He grasped the handle firmly, and with one leap across the legs of his companion, he was out into the aisle, crouching low, the weapon pointed, covering his captors.

A sharp cry from Lefty brought Chuck's fist into close proximity with the gangster's eye, sending him sprawling back over the seat. The Mug and Molly turned, their mouths fell open. They jumped to their feet, but the business end of the pistol faced them. The Mug made a rush, only to be met with a neat upper-cut.

"All right, fellas," Chuck was backing down the aisle towards the door. He reached the end of the passage. Cautiously his free hand stole around behind his back and turned the knob. The door opened. "See you in the funny papers," the door slammed, and Chuck had disappeared.

"Come on," Lefty yelled. "We gotta get him!" His voice brought Molly and the Mug out into the aisle, both cursing roundly.

"Where'd he git dat gat?" the Mug growled.

"Can th' buzz-buzz," Molly or dered in no uncertain tones of voice. "Come on. We'll get him! She fled down the aisle, the three men following in her wake.

The slow moving train made a simple matter. He jumped down from the open steps and started back along the road which he had just been traveling. Realizing that the others would be quickly on his heels, he sped towards the friendly shelter of the overhanging brush and trees that lay between the roadway and the railroad tracks.

Almost a half hour elapsed before he could see the lights of the station gleaming ahead of him. He skirted the building, preferring not to be seen by any possible watch man. He took the short cut up through the woods, depending on his knowledge of the lay of the land to guide him back to the house.

At last, some little distance beyond he could catch the faintest sparkle of light. As he drew nearer he could make out the bulk of the old stone dwelling. The lamps downstairs had evidently been extinguished for he could see only one lighted room and that was Rose's bedroom. Sudden fear gripped his heart. He rushed headlong towards the steps, and then slowed down warily.

Feeling his way about in the darkness, Chuck's hand finally lighted upon the door knob. Slowly he turned it round. The door swung open, letting in a gust of wind and rain. Quickly he closed it behind him and listened. Abruptly the sound of his name smote his ears. It was Rose's voice—Rose's voice raised in an anguished cry. Throwing caution to the winds he made a dash for the stairway and leaped up the steps three at a time. Hurling his weight against the door he was flung suddenly into the room almost on top of the Professor, who had been leaning against the jamb. Rose in his arms.

"Damn your dirty soul!" Quick as a flash Chuck whipped out his revolver, covering the man. His face torn and bleeding, his clothes hanging about him in limp, wet bedraggled, he stood for a moment contemplating the scene. Then with a snarl of rage he sprang forward; his fist shot out, dealing the astonished Professor a blow that sent him reeling backwards.

With a choking sob Rose threw herself into Chuck's arms, clinging to him, crying hysterically. "Oh, Chuck! Chuck! I knew you'd come. I knew you'd come!"

Infuriated, the Professor flung towards Chuck, his fists doubled up, his face contorted in terrible fury. But the out-thrust gun brought him to a sudden halt. He stopped short, his eyes glowering in baffled anger. The two men measured each other in silence. Then with a laugh of derisive cunning, the Professor fell back a few steps and looked at Chuck and the girl. He was not through yet.

"So the Squire of Dames has returned to protect the proud beauty, eh?" The Professor chuckled, as though enjoying his own little joke. His leering eyes appraised the girl. "And you, my dear Miss Shannon," he continued mockingly, "you believe he loves you?"

To Rose his words meant little or nothing. She made no answer save only to cling more closely to the boy, her actions assuring him that she was unafraid now that he was there with her. Chuck began to sense that something was wrong. But he had not long to wait, for the man's next question revealed his intent.

"You believe that he intends to marry you?" His words shot out venomously, their portent dire.

Rose still stared at the man, uncomprehending. But there was a shade of meaning in his voice that sent a chill of dread to her heart. She looked up at Chuck as though expecting to find consoling confidence there. But the boy's face was drawn and pale. His mouth was a thin, bitter, determined line. His chin was thrust forward beligerently.

"Shut your damn dirty mouth," he snapped. He shut his teeth with a little click. "If you say one more word I'll drill you through, so help me, God!"

"It was his plan." The Professor pointed a long, lean finger towards Chuck, but his words were addressed to the girl. "It was his plan to make you believe he'd marry you. He brought you down here on that pretense to make you tell him where you'd hidden that money."

Bang! The revolver spat. A sudden flash of red flame flared. A bullet tore through the air.

"Damn you!" Henryway yelled, snatched at a chair and sank to the floor, catching at his leg, moaning.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

OWN WATER WORKS
Circleville, Ohio, July 5, 1928

Editor, The Herald:—
The Ohio Water Supply Co., the foreign owned institution, has not a foot to stand on.

It is operating without a license or franchise in this city and anyone who wishes, can have their own supply of water by boring a hole in the ground, and they can obtain purer and better water than that obtained from the surface water of Darby creek, which is drained from a surface of many miles of land, carrying decayed vegetable matter and decayed animal matter.

This water has been repeatedly analyzed by state chemists in order to keep it free of typhoid germs which infest surface water. The water that we are forced to drink, is not spring water, but is filtered Darby creek water.

The company also uses copious amounts of chlorine to settle the mud in the water; so we get it apparently clear, but this does not purify the water. The water is devoid of iodine, and some scientists declare that much of the goitre prevalent in this city is due to our drinking of this unwholesome drinking water, which is the hardest in the state.

Some who can afford it are putting in water softeners, but this is an expensive proposition. The best way to beat this loosen its tenacious hold on your purse, is to install your own water works. An electric pump will force water from one of these bored wells to any part of the house. I have one on one of my lots, and neighbors for blocks around are using this water, which is as cool as ice and as pure as the dew that falls from heaven.

ALBUMEN INDICATES SOMETHING IS WRONG

Presence of Foreign Substance in the Urine May Not Be Dangerous But the Cause Must Be Eradicated.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A GREAT many letters come to me from various parts of the continent. Many of them ask for health advice and others inquire about the treatment of this and that disease.

When you are really ill you need the personal attention of your family physician. I would not undertake to direct the treatment at long range. But advice about how to avoid disease I gladly give, as well as elementary information about the causes of disease.

Recently I had a letter from a disturbed mother, anxious to know what can be done for her son who has "albuminuria." This lady does not realize she has asked a question I cannot answer without more information than she gave me.

I shall attempt to explain why the word "albuminuria" is a general term applied to albumen in the urine. There should be no albumen in the urine and when it is present there is something really wrong with the health.

What is albumen? A good example is the white of an egg. Another form of albumen is present in the blood. If you strain out of the blood the red and white corpuscles, there is left a clear serum. This, in a sense, is not unlike egg white. At least it contains albumen.

In some abnormal kidney conditions blood may escape from the capillaries and find its way to the urine. In every such case albumen will be found if the urine is tested. There are a lot of such disturbances of the kidneys.

You would expect albuminuria in inflammation of the kidneys—the condition the doctors call "nephritis." Every inflammation has as a symptom congestion—a surplus of blood. It is not to be wondered at that in nephritis the fluid part of the blood oozes out and reaches the urine.

It is not necessary to have an actual inflammation. Anything which produces kidney congestion will do the same thing. Diseases of the lungs, liver or heart sometimes produce congestion of the kidneys and it may be so pronounced as to result in albuminuria. Any fever is capable of doing the same thing.

There are conditions in which the blood is thinned leaving it more likely to leak into the urine. Of course this is a pretty crude way to explain the condition but at least it will make it understandable.

Among the disturbances which produce albuminuria are anemia and poisoning by drugs. Albuminuria is a symptom observed in epilepsy, concussion of the brain and other diseases of the brain or nervous system. In women it is not uncommon during pregnancy.

Young persons may have albuminuria even in the absence of any exciting disease. After severe exertion or after a cold bath it may be present.

In short, it is impossible to form an opinion in any case of albuminuria without knowing all the circumstances. It may be a thing to worry over, or it may not be. To know what to do to overcome it you must first find out why the symptom appears.

CONCEALS MANNER IN WHICH HE DIED

COLUMBUS, O., July 5—Geo. Thaler, 44, who committed suicide here yesterday, concealed his mode of self destruction so completely that police are at a loss to determine how he died.

A note scribbled on a scrap torn from a paper sack was found on the center of the dining room table of his home late last night, which read "you will find me in the garage, Geo." Other than that there were no clues.

Mrs. Thaler who found the note called neighbors who went to the garage and investigated. Thaler's body was found there with no evidence of asphyxiation or poisoning. No marks of violence were on the body.

A search of the premises revealed no poison container, and Mrs. Thaler could offer no reason for her husband's suicide.

TOD TO DEFEND TITLE

EDDIE MARTIN WILL ATTEMPT TO WHIP HIM

Fifteen-round Battle at Ebbets Field Finds Champ 7 To 5 Favorite.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
U. P. Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 5.—Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., the dean of ring champions, will defend his junior lightweight boxing title against Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of New York, former bantamweight champion, in a 15-round bout at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, tonight.

Scheduled for last night, the bout was postponed until tonight at the request of Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy, who deemed it inadvisable to hold the contest on the night of a holiday.

Since Morgan won the 130 pound crown from Mike Ballerino in 1925 every other boxing championship has changed hands. Oddly enough, Morgan frequently has been beaten in non-championship bouts, but thus far he has always managed to win when his title was at stake.

The frail Seattle boy engaged in only six matches last year, lost four of them and yet managed to hang onto his title. Morgan is a clever boxer and prone to coast with no reward to fight for.

Even in his last two championship matches against Joe Glick, the Brooklyn Pants Presser, and Martin several weeks ago, Morgan barely saved his title. Glick was ahead on points when he fouled Morgan in the 14th round. Morgan won a contested decision over Martin.

Staging a remarkable comeback after losing his 118 pound title, Martin did not lose a bout after his return to the ring until Morgan won a decision from him.

Ordinarily Morgan might not consent to a return-match with Martin, but the junior lightweight titleholder wants to convince the New York first colony that he had not gone back. He contends that he was so weakened by an attack of boils prior to the Martin bout that he was not his real self.

"I can lick Martin any time," Morgan says. "I'll admit the last bout was close, but I wasn't my self. I am in shape this time and I'll win hands down."

Martin has his eye on a bout with the lightweight champion Sammy Mandell, and is anxious to annex the junior lightweight title in his championship towards the 130 pound championship.

Morgan is a 7 to 5 favorite in the betting.

SPORTSMATTER

FRANK GETTY

One month ago today, the Washington Senators were in the cellar of the American League, apparently without the ambition or baseball ability to beat even the Boston Red Sox.

Bucky Harris' club was riddled by injuries, most important of all that which kept "Goose" Goslin off the playing field.

Harris tried Sisler, Barnes, Wes, Spalding and several others in Goslin's place in left field, without success. The "Goose" himself couldn't throw a ball overhead, and drives into his territory had to be relayed back to the diamond by the center-fielder.

The Senators, from whom so much had been expected, slumped to eighth place May 22, and remained there until June 7, when the competition between Chicago and Detroit became so hot that there was no room down there for Washington.

"Goose" Came Back

About that time, "Goose" Goslin recovered sufficiently to take his place in the regular line-up. The Washington Senators started up the long trail to the first division. "Goose" took over the batting leadership of the American League, wielding his big war club at better than a .400 clip. The whole club perked up and began to play baseball, sweeping a most important series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

"As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees," they say of the Rambino and his world's champions.

Before the season is over, they may be saying the same thing about Goslin and the Senators.

The "Goose" is a ball player's ball player, for all he comes in for a deal of kidding from the others. All the "All-American" teams of recent years have included the name of Goslin. He is a hard worker and a fighter, always ready to give the extra ounce of effort or the left hook which any situation seems to require.

While injuries have handicapped the Senators during this and last season, Goslin played in 148 games during 1927, batting .334. Although he gives the impression of being a hardened veteran, the "Goose" is only 27, and this is only his ninth season in organized baseball. He broke in with Columbia of the South Atlantic League, going to Washington in 1921.

World Series Star

Evidence that the Senators' star is a fighting ball player, is found in his batting average for two world series. It frequently happens that the best batters do not excel during a championship series. They are too much in the lime-light. Babe Ruth and others have been known to hit less than their weight in a post season engagement, although the Babe's weight still makes quite a respectable batting average for most people.

Goslin, however, while he is a marked man in a world series and the butt of most of the jokes, keeps up his hitting and consequently is doubly useful to his club. Against the New York Giants, who were riding him hard, "Goose" hit .344 in the 1924 series when the Senators won the championship of the world. The following year, he hit .308 against the Pirates, nothing to write home to Salem, N. J., about, but still better than most of the other Senators did in that series.

The Senators are not going anywhere this season, since the New York Yankees already have appropriated the American League flag and are just playing out the schedule to get a little practice for another world series with the St. Louis Cardinals. But Washington belongs in the first division, no lower than third place.

METER TEAMS ARE SELECTED FOR OLYMPICS

Interest In Trials Today Centers On Decathlon Teams For U. S.

BY HILLIER KREIGHBAUM
United Press Staff Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—

With the Olympic 400 metre hurdles and 400 metre dash teams chosen—after spectacular showings—interest at the Municipal Stadium today centered on the choosing of the decathlon team that will represent the United States at Amsterdam.

Competition in the decathlon was ended yesterday by rain and at that time James Stewart, the Los Angeles A. C. athlete who did so remarkably well in the trials on the west coast, was leading with 5,500 points in seven events.

Kenneth Dougherty of the Cadillac A. C., was second with 5,468 and Wes Ehleman, Jr., South Dakota State Teachers college, was third with 5,048. Barney Berlinger was just boosting his score through excellent work in the pole vault when the rain interfered necessitating a cessation of the trials yesterday.

Yesterday's performances were sensational, chief of which was that of F. Morgan Taylor of the Illinois A. C., who set a new world's record in the 400 meters hurdles of 53 seconds, and the work of Frank Cuhel, who dipped a fifth of a second off that record a few minutes later.

Cuhel previously had held the record at 53 3-5 seconds. The two teams chosen after yesterday's performances:

Four hundred meters—F. Morgan Taylor, Illinois A. C.; Frank Cuhel, University of Iowa; John A. Gibson, Bloomfield, N. J.

There was a possibility Robert Maxwell, Los Angeles A. C., might go as a fourth man.

Four hundred meters dash—Ray Barbut, New York A. C.; Emerson Spencer, Leland Stanford university; Joseph P. Tierney, New York A. C.; Herman Phillips, Illinois A. C.; George Baird, University of Iowa; Al Leist, Detroit Y. M. C. A.; Fred Alderman, Illinois A. C.

SUCCEEDS SCHALK
CHICAGO, July 5.—Russell "Lena" Blackburne today took over the management of the Chicago White Sox, replacing Ray "Cracker" Schalk, who had been at the helm since 1926 until he resigned yesterday.

Blackburne has served as coach under Schalk.

THE CIGAR THAT BROUGHT THE NICKEL BACK

Have you surrendered to the idea that five cents can no longer buy an enjoyable cigar? Here's one that not only disputes that idea, but gives your nickels the biggest cigar-buying power they ever had: Havana Ribbon.

No enormous production of this widely known favorite that the manufacturers are able to use tobacco you generally find only in higher priced cigars. Think of it! No bitter, raspy under-ripe top leaves of the tobacco plant. No flat, insipid over-ripe bottom leaves. No crumbling "scraps." Long-filler, fully-ripe middle leaves from heart to wrapper! Know what that means? A smoke so true, smooth, fragrant, flavorful and mellow-mild you'll scarce believe your taste. Man, find, beg or borrow a nickel! Do a quick-step to the nearest cigar counter and sail into a Havana Ribbon! Better still, corral a quarter, buy a Practical Pocket Package of five and make the whole day a song of smoke contentment.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

BY EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT the two most important things for the success of a business is to have the right kind of goods and then let the public know about it in the right way.

THAT the merchandise that sells best throughout the year is the merchandise that is advertised throughout the year.

THAT every concern should give their business a chance to grow. Do it BY ADVERTISING!

THAT when reason and common sense prevail in business, progress is assured.

THAT advertised goods are today in the favor of the consumer because the consumer has become acquainted with them through persistent advertising and has learned to like them.

THAT the use of advertised goods has caused an appreciation of their high quality and splendid value.

THAT buying advertised goods makes shopping mistake-proof. THAT advertising helps the people to economize.

THAT successful business has been based on the rock of high quality goods and persistent advertising.

THE STORE OF ADVERTISED GOODS MAKES QUALITY ITS FIRST AND LAST CONSIDERATION.
